This serum isn't just about treating existing concerns; it's about preventing future breakouts. The unique properties of azelaic acid help regulate sebum production, a key factor in the development of acne. By targeting this underlying cause, this serum helps to maintain a balanced complexion and prevent future blemishes from forming. This preventative action contributes to long-term skin health and a more consistent, radiant glow. You'll find that your skin becomes less reactive and more resilient over time, requiring less intervention to maintain its healthy state.
